A Life Lived For God

Our Sunday school quarterly observes that the greatest changes in history are happening right now, in our time. The digital age has reconfigured our world. Things once thought unimaginable have come to pass, forever altering our lives. It's estimated that our world has undergone only about 15 percent of the changes expected from the digital revolution. People everywhere feel stretched and sometimes torn by the never-ending changes we are enduring. Many are beleaguered as the digital age disorients and sometimes dehumanizes people. How do we navigate the tumult of such an ever-changing world?

Followers of Christ recognize the signs of the times and understand that God has placed us here, where we are for a reason. We live at the tip of the spear between heaven and earth - as part of the kingdom of God and as citizens of earth. We are certainly in this world, but we need not be of it. In the midst of our world's uncertainty, God has given us a sure Word. He has called us to be His holy people. He wants us to live our lives in a way that is radically distinguished from the world around us - set apart with hope, wholeness, and holiness.

We are called to listen to the Lord and honor Him in all we do. Scripture tells us to "work at living in peace with everyone, and work at living a holy life, for those who are not holy will not see the Lord" (Heb. 12:14). Holiness will not happen by accident, which is why the inspired writer said, "work" at that lifestyle.

Together with you,

Les

Problem Solving

A zoo built a special eight-foot-high enclosure for its newly acquired kangaroo but the next morning the animal was found hopping around outside. The director of the zoo increased the height of the fence to fifteen feet, but the kangaroo escaped again. Puzzled, the director had the height increased to thirty feet; but, much to his dismay, the kangaroo still escaped.

Watching the director build higher and higher fences, a giraffe asked the kangaroo, "How high do you think they'll build the fence?"

"I don't know," said the kangaroo. "Maybe a thousand feet if they keep leaving the gate unlocked!"

It's easy for us to try and solve a problem in the wrong way. Keep doing the simple foundational things in life, and other things tend to usually work out alright.
